

Download Civilian Education And The Preparation For Service And Leadership In Antebellum America, 1845–1860

Between 1815 and 1860, the main role of the Army was control of Indians in the West, and manning coast artillery stations at major ports. Most of the forces were stationed on the frontier, or and coastal defense units near seaports. - Civilian Education And The Preparation For Service And Leadership In Antebellum America, 1845–1860